JOKE ON THE OLD MAN.

He Laid Violent Hands on Some Other Man's Son, Mistaking Him for His Own.

The man who tells this story holds up his right hand and says it is absolutely true. He is a gentleman of family, and it was in connection with the family that the event recorded here tran-

The gentleman was bringing his famly out west, and in some way he was obliged to stay behind for a day to finish up some business. It was the year of the world's fair. To even things with his wife, he kept one of the little boys with him. There was some difficulty in getting berths secured, but it was managed for the wife and other children, and after some exertion, the father and son also got a sleeping place engaged. What was the chagrin of the father on getting into the car to find his sear, to have the porter come along and tell Father-I don't see why you can't him that that berth had been previouslike Mr. Chubleigh. His habits are ly sold. The man was mad. He said so, and more. But he thought he would or play the races. What's your object and the conductor of the train and get matters fixed up at once. He got up to go on this mission.

"Now, Willie," he said to the little boy, "I'm going to be away just a few minutes. You sit right where you are and don't you move a bit. If you do, I'll spank you good and hard. So, don't stick your head out of the window. You might have it taken off if you do. Then you wouldn't have any head and you'd get an awful spanking besides." The man went away to find the conductor. After a few minutes he came

Good gracious! There was Willie with just his feet and the seat of his trousers sticking in through the window. He was more outside than inside. and might just as well have tumbled out as not. Moreover, whenever a telegraph pole whizzed by and looked especially close, he would make a lunge for it, as if trying to eatch hold of it. The father stood looking at him just a moment, then he made a lunge for the boy just as the latter was making a lunge for a pole. The irate father pulled the boy in by the heels, laid him over his knee and commenced a terrific onslaught with the open palm of his hand. The little fellow yelled and yelled until he drowned out the noise of the train. But during a lull in the music, the father heard a snicker behind him. He laid the boy down and turned around to see what the snicker meant. Heavens and earth! There was his son sitting two seats behind and across the aisle with two fingers stuffed in his mouth to keep his merriment in. The man looked again and rubbed his eyes, and looked yet again, but, there was no mistake. His son was across the aisle. He looked at the boy in his lap. Behind the tears that almost veiled the little fellow's identity was a face that he had never seen before. He had spanked some other man's son, and undertake another job of the same nature on his account. - Detroit Free Press.

PERPETUAL YEAST.

When Properly Prepared Will Be Ready for Use for an Indefinite Period.

An excellent and simple yeast, which gives the very best results, is now generally used in place of the old time hop or potato yeast. It is perpetual. That is, once started, the yeast may be kept and easily renewed each week by simply adding the potato water and a little sugar to it. A quart preserving can is the most convenient thing to start and to keep this yeast in. To begin a can of this perpetual yeast, dissolve a compressed yeast cake in a quarter of a cup of lukewarm potato water-that is, the water in which the potatoes for dinner are cooked. Fill a quart can or glass half full of lukewarm potato water. Add half a cup of granulated sugar to it, and when this is dissolved add the quarter of a cup of dissolved yeast. Stir well and set the can containing the yeast in a moderately warm place, but not where it will be heated perceptibly, and let it stand until the whole is very light. Seal up the can and the day before you are ready to make bread fill the can full of lukewarm potato water, and add another half cup of sugar. Let the can stand for about 24 hours. Beat the foaming white yeast and use a pint, or half the can, for four small or three iarge loaves of bread. Use as much lukewarm water as you do of yeast, and mix the bread at once, kneading it thoroughly. Seal up the can of yeast, set it away and a day before the yeast is needed fill up the can again with lukewarm potato water, in which the potatoes were boiled, and half a cup of sugar, and it is ready for use again when it is risen.—N. Y. Tribune.
